

About MDP

Global Management Development Program (GMDP) is the congregation of doyens from various domains, who are dedicated for training and conducting Management Development Programs. The Trainers/ Resource persons have evolved an innovative methodology to radically revolutionize the overall process of conducting Management Development Programs. They come from diverse areas of their experiences to bring together their intellectual capital to disseminate it to the participants of the corporate world to help them in maximizing productivity in every sphere of their operation.

The value driven approach inspires the whole team of GMDP to deliver services with international benchmarks.

It is unique in its multifaceted areas, such as, assessment of training needs, training methodologies, impact of training, application of learned skills at the workplace, productivity maximization resulting from training, and overall impact of training and management development programs.

Methodology: The methodology of the programs would be participatory in nature involving interaction with the participants and would have an optimum blend of lecture, case studies, management games, audio video presentations(s) depending on the focus area of the concerned resource person(s).

Weather in Delhi and Recommended Dress: The participants attending the program in Delhi are advised to carry adequate woolen clothes in winter season (October March) as Delhi is quite cold. The minimum and maximum temperature ranges from 3° C to 22° C during the winter season (October March) and 22° C to 45° C during the summer season (April - September).
